Our bathtubs are manufactured of the best possible materials. Carefully selected wood veneers are compressed together under high pressure and completely saturated with resin. This means that the possibility of wood spikes, saturating of the wood with water and other unsightly signs of wear are excluded. The extremely resistant special varnish has been tested under the hardest conditions. It guarantees optimal protection and a very long service life for the wooden bathtub. And – should a few scratches have appeared after some years – then these can be easily polished away again by the customer. Basically, we can manufacture our products from every conceivable type of wood. However, in view of the very large number of different sorts of wood, we have limited our stock to a selected range at the present time. Nevertheless, through our good relationships with our suppliers, we can obtain any particular wood that might be desired within a reasonable period of time. Just let us know your wishes - we can make almost anything possible!

We only use certified wood from forests with controlled felling and reforestation.
